

2016 CHARDONNAY

“One of the more elegant and restrained Margaret River chardonnays, the accent on the very high quality fruit grown on the immaculate estate vineyards, not on winemaker Clive Otto’s thumbprints. The flavours are more in the white peach/nectarine spectrum than citrus until the parting shot of citrusy acidity.”

“This well-priced young chardonnay has a light hue and restrained straw-hay aromas over lemon and grapefruit nuances, which also fill the palate. The finish is clean, crisp and refreshing. It has early-picked vitality, purity of fruit and sensitively handled oak.”

“The back label notes that ‘the fruit profile is slender, refined and understated – citrus in character – with a sense of elegance.’ Which seems to me to be a pretty good description of the style, and of what the wine has to offer, and of what people can expect.”

The wine lives up to it’s billing. It’s fresh and zippy with sweet lime, passionfruit and lemongrass characters tending ever-so-slightly into both pear and grapefruit. It’s refreshing and lengthy; it’s not too slender but it’s certainly not big or bold. Softness to the texture doesn’t hurt matters either.”
